Zonework's Fleckenstein Elected to IACSC Board

Zoneworks Regional Sales Manager Matt Fleckenstein was recently elected to the IACSC Board of Directors (International Association for Cold Storage Construction.) With over 12 years of temperature zoning experience in industrial facilities, Fleckenstein brings valuable insight to the organization. His sharp eye for detail and ability to recognize possibilities in partitioning cold storage facilities have helped many companies overcome their temperature-controlled space division challenges, earning him industry recognition as an expert in this field.

Zoneworks is an expert in the design and construction of flexible wall systems for all your environmental zoning needs. Our products meet the highest quality standards, and turn-key project support is provided for every job. Zoneworks is part of the Rite-Hite family of companies, all focused on leading-edge technology and innovative alternatives for the industry's toughest safety, security and energy savings challenges.

IACSC represents member companies as an industry, providing a forum for innovative ideas, promoting standards of practice for the cold storage construction industry. IACSC sponsors professional education programs and promotes the interests of the industry in political, legal and regulatory arenas.
